

WE RATE DOGS

FEBRUARY 2018

DOMESTIC DOG

Kingdom:

Animalia

Phylum:

Chordata

Class:

Mammalia

Order:

Carnivora

Family:

Canidae

Genus:

Canis

Species:

C. lupus

Subspecies:

C. l. familiaris

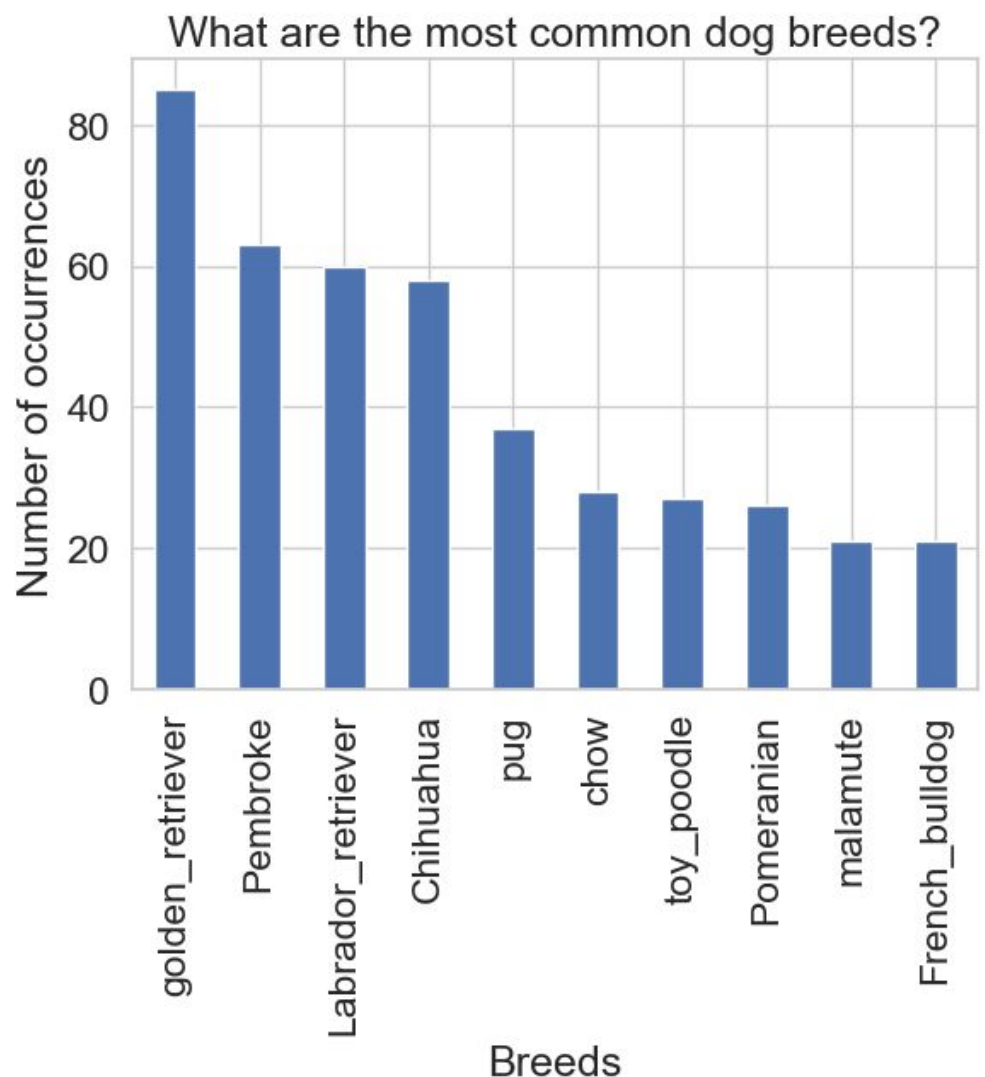

We Rate Dogs

Introduction

In this article I will show you the the most interesting facts about We Rate Dogs tweets, get ready for the fluffiest journey about our four legged best friends. We will explore how people of twitter rate and love dogs, what are the most common breeds and who is the best good boy of twitter

What are the most common dog breeds?

The golden retriever appears to be the most common breed, followed by the pembroke and labrador breeds. I can confirm this finding based on what I see in my experience every day. Golden and labrador retrievers are commonly used in tv and product commercials, you can see them on a lot of product ads, they are literally everywhere.

Who are the dogs on the podium for the best rating?

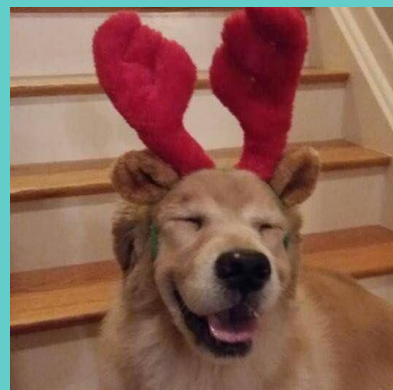

Atticus, Bluebert and Sam are the three dogs with the highest rating. Atticus is the best good boy of twitter with a stunning rating of 1776

Atticus
1776

Bluebert
50

Sam
24

As you can see the golden retriever breed appears to be common even in this section, I am a golden retriever owner too.

The Golden Retriever descends from dogs bred in the 1800s in Britain, when sportsmen wanted efficient retrieving dogs for both waterfowl and upland game. It is thought that almost all retrievers go back to the Saint John's Dog of Newfoundland, an immediate ancestor of the wavy-coated retriever, which is behind both the Flat-Coated and the Golden retrievers. The best record of the breed's origin is contained in a journal kept from about 1840 to 1890 by Dudley Marjoribanks in the Highlands, Inverness-shire, of Scotland. He acquired the only yellow puppy in a litter of black wavy-coated retrievers in 1865 and named him Nous, which is Greek for "wisdom."

Nous grew into a sturdy dog recognizable as a Golden. He was bred to a Tweed Water Spaniel (now an extinct breed) named Belle, resulting in four yellow puppies that became the foundation of the Golden Retriever breed. Over years of careful breeding, occasionally bringing in another Tweed Water Spaniel, several black Wavy-Coated Retrievers, a red setter and possible a Labrador retriever and a Bloodhound, Mr. Marjoribanks and his relatives created an exceptional and consistent line of yellow working retrievers with exceptional water abilities.

How the dogs stages are distributed?

Pupper seems to be the most common dog stage with a score 115, followed by doggo and puppo.

- Pupper: in contrast to "doggo," "pupper" usually means a dog of smaller size. See this important Reddit thread about the difference between pupper and doggo.
- Doggo: a dog. Important note: while this can technically be a dog of any size, it is most often used to denote a dog of medium to large size.
- Puppo: A very small puppy.
- Floofer: a very fluffy dog (or occasionally, other animal).

